Our strength is drawn from the rich contributions of our writers and the profound engagement of our readers. Together, we look forward to continuing our journey towards unparalleled academic and research distinction.

Established in 2017, "Ansaq" celebrates its rich heritage and its aspiration towards a future filled with achievements. From its inception, we have strived to be a beacon of free thought, a forum for constructive academic debate, and an arena for rigorous scientific research. Our magazine enhances cultural and intellectual interactions, offering a platform for writers and researchers to contribute to the enrichment of knowledge and the advancement of human thought. Our motto, "What is not in a state of creation is in a state of decay," represents our commitment to continual renewal and progress.

As the chair of the editorial board, I look forward to deepening our cooperation with researchers and expanding our academic partnerships that serve Qatar University's mission and enhance its status as a center of research excellence. We are committed to establishing "Ansaq" as a progressive intellectual forum, bridging civilizations, enhancing cultural understanding, and fostering scientific dialogue.

Our magazine remains dedicated to publishing leading-edge research that addresses contemporary challenges and offers innovative solutions.
