Editorial Foreword

This year, the International Review of Law (IRL) journal celebrates a decade of publishing since its first issue that came out in the year 2012. During this period, it contributed to the publication of distinguished scientific works by researchers from different countries and in various specialized and comparative legal fields. The IRL has become a reliable platform that attracts highly regarded legal researchers for the dissemination of knowledge.

The IRL was successful in fulfilling the criteria of the Arab Impact and Citation Factor (ARCIF) accreditation for the year 2021, which is compatible with international standards. It achieved classification in the first category within the specialization of law for this year.

This issue encompasses 10 titles, as diversity of legal articles dealt within the journal remains its distinguished feature:

1. Investment Protection through Partner Agreements: The Piggyback Clauses as a Model (by Belkani).
2. Proportionate Obligation between the Absence of Legal Text and the Presence of Judicial Application (by Al-adwan & Al-shwabkeh).
3. Saving the Juridical Personality of Commercial Companies from Nullity: An Overview of French Law from a Qatari Perspective (by Ibrahim).
4. The Scope of Arab Investment Court's Jurisdiction: Comment on Judgement No. 1/14 Judicial ruled in favor of the Republic of Libya in 2018 (by Alsharaf).
5. Toward Improving Real Estate Rules of Kuwaiti Private International Law: A Critical Study (by Aljarallah).
6. Standard Form Contract: A Comparative Study (by Alaish).
7. The Authority Competent to Determine the Attorney Fees: A Study for the Provisions of Jordanian Bar Association Law and the Comparative Laws (by Samamah).
8. International Law and Cyber-attacks without the Use of Force (by Alzubairi).
9. Deciphering the OIC Investment Agreement in Light of the Itisaluna v. Republic of Iraq Award (by Konstantinidis).
10. Fictitiousness in Qatari Commercial Corporate Law (by Mzoughi).

The issue also includes review (by Doukkali) of the book "International Organizations: History, Politics, Economy, Law, Management".

The editorial board would like to thank all researchers for choosing IRL. We look forward to sharing this research outcome with a wide audience that can benefit from such studies and develop more passion for law.
