Editorial Foreword

We meet with the audience of the International Journal of Law in this new issue that encourages a deep analysis of various issues in the field of law. The International Journal of Law maintains its identity as an international journal because it publishes research from various national and international legal systems based on a comparative approach, taking into account the diversity of the research and researchers.

Following is the list of papers this issue carries:

- 1- Mouhannad Moukthar Nouh, The Inner Particularism of the National Olympic Committee: A Comparative Study.
- 2- Fares Manahi Al-Mutairi, Principles of Jurisdiction of Juvenile Courts: A Comparative Study in the American and Kuwaiti Approach.
- 3- Eiman Khaled Alqattan, Legal Protection from Violence against Women: Critical Analysis of Law No. 16 of 2020 on Protection from Domestic Violence.
- 4- Zaid Mohammed Almuqbe, Legislative Organization of the National Security Council: A Comparative Study between Jordan and Egypt.
- 5- Sabah Ali Hussain Al Yousef & Fatima Ali Fahad Al Hewail, The Effect of the Choice of Minor Children of a Naturalized Kuwaiti for their Previous Nationality according to Article 7 of the Kuwaiti Nationality Law.
- 6- Ahmad Ziad Ahmad Dabak, The Problem of Identifying the Persons Covered by Reconciliation according to Palestinian Income Tax Legislation: A Comparative and Analytical Study.
- 7- Anouar Hatim, Defense by Videoconference Technology in Morocco: A Procedural Violation or the Future of the Criminal Trial?
- 8- Abdullah Ahmed Alkayat, The Insider Trading Prohibition in Qatar: A Critical Analytical Study with US Law.

The issue also includes a book review on “Environmental Law in Arab States,” by Mohammed Rashid Al-hassan Al-Sulaiti.

The editorial team appreciates the efforts of all researchers and urges them to maintain their confidence in publishing their research papers within the issues of the International Journal of Law. We hope that the research papers published in this issue will serve the readership and add to their passion for law.
