Editorial Foreword

The International Review of Law (IRL) is keen to be a link between researchers and general readers interested in the legal field with the aim to disseminate legal knowledge. The IRL presents the first Issue of the year 2024. This issue's research papers focus mainly on national and comparative legal topics. It is also characterized by the geographical diversity of researchers. The IRL's editorial team is eager to select high-quality research that contributes to openness to comparative legal systems, in addition to tackling national laws in a way that enriches the legal research.

This issue includes Seven research papers in Arabic and English, with different topics as follows:

1. "Evaluating the Consumer's Residence as a Connecting Factor in Consumers' Contracts with Foreign Element" by Bashayer Salah Abdallah Alghanim
2. "Legislative Interest in Consumer Rights, a New Approach within Modern Legislation: Qatari and Algerian Legislation as a Model" by Sami Benhamla
3. "The legal framework for a shadow Director in English law: an analytical study" by Fahad Al-Zumai
4. "Judiciary interference in arbitral tribunal formation" by Faouzi BELKNANI
5. "Social Security for International Servants- An Analytical, Inductive, Comparative Study under Administrative International Law and Two Domestic Systems from Kuwait and Saudi Arabia" by Al-Yamāma Khudāir Al-Harbī
6. "Heterogeneous Diplomacy of Political Relations between Iran and Afghanistan in exploiting the water of the Helmand Border River" by Abbas Poorhashemi, Sobhan Tayebi, Marzieh Fathi Bornaji
7. "Regulation of Treasury Shares in Kuwaiti Law, A Comparative Study" by Yousef Muhammad Altamimi

The editorial family appreciates the efforts of all researchers and urges them to maintain their confidence in publishing their research papers within the issues of the IRL. We hope that the research papers published in this issue will serve the readership and add to them what develops their passion for law.
